The School to Work Program Offers:

- Flexible program schedule & content
- In-classroom services teaching
 - » Job seeking skills
 - » Transition topics
- Resume preparation
- Job Shadowing experiences
- Job Placement
- Workplace Readiness Trainers
- On-the-Job Assessments
- Follow Along Services

Why School to Work

Why school to work? Students with special needs have unique challenges they face when entering the job market. The New Horizons school to work program works with students in transition and helps them:

- Examine their interests, goals and talent
- See how school subjects relate to the world of work
- Learn self-advocacy and independence
- Feel supported and encouraged
- Develop social and vocational soft skills
- Understand how their Educational Development Plan (EDP) correlates to their career pathway
- Find and retain employment
- Investigate and pursue post-secondary educational and vocational options

Teaching job seeking skills and transition topics

We have staff members that travel to schools and present topics in the classroom. These topics include, but are not limited to:

- Employer expectations
- Resume preparation, application and references
- Career exploration
- Workplace Readiness Trainers
- Actual On-the-Job Assessments
- Follow Along after a job is secured

Job Placement

In job placement, our goal is to help find students the right job.

We can arrange for Community and Work Based Learning Experiences, as well as, Job Placement opportunities. We can help students find after-school, summer and permanent positions. To support and assist students, we have Workplace Readiness Training services available and Follow-up Services to ensure that their transition is successful.
